

Thinkism | Power Planning Is Both
“Incremental And Strategic”

“Incremental thinking is when you design a company to be run tomorrow based on what you have today. Strategic thinking is when you look into the future and design your company based on what you want to become.” (Linda Honold)

At ProSidian Consulting, we believe Power Planning is a unique, proven process for implementing a shared accountability system that helps companies take control of their business success.

With a stronger buy-in to goals, a team more committed to achieving them, and consensus on measurable lines of accountability, companies are positioned to progress more profitably for the long-term.
